We were indeed glad to learn through the Register last evening, of the intended (?) marriage of a "brother scribbler," presumably of the Daily Leader, at Custerhill this evening. The young Register reporter has evidently made a "scoop," and it is probable that he will make many more such "scoops" before he learns that funny men's jokes are not always reliable news items. The Leader's local newsgatherer hopes to enjoy many more days of bachelorhood ere the Register "scoops" the news of his marriage.

The Politician.

Washington, July 21.—President McKinley has had considerable army experience himself, and it is not surprising that he should not feel called upon to give any official notice to the complaint of certain newspaper correspondents at Manila, that Gen. Otis had not conducted the war against the Filipinos to suit them, and that his military censor has not allowed them to cable anything they chose to write to their papers. The President knows that the same sort of complaints were made against Gen. Grant, Gen. Sherman, Gen. Sheridan, and in fact, every officer who conducted a campaign during the Civil war. He knows that those officers managed to get along notwithstanding those complaints, and he has every confidence in the ability of Gen. Otis to do the same. Information from civil and naval sources, over which Gen. Otis has no control, have coincided too closely with what he has sent for any unprejudiced person to swallow the story of his having at any time misrepresented the situation.

Secretary Alger has placed his resignation in the hands of President McKinley, to take effect whenever the President wishes; that ought to stop a lot of fool talk, but, of course, it won't.
Senator Nelson was given a hearing by Secretary Hitchcock, Assistant Secretary Ryan and Indian Commissioner Jones, concerning the order of June 22, for the withdrawal of all intruders and white trespassers from the Lass Lake reservation. Senator Nelson took the ground that the reservation was public land and that settlers had a right to enter it, and asked that the carrying into effect of the order be postponed until there should be opportunity for Congressional action. Secretary Hitchcock has not announced his decision yet, but will do so in a day or two.

Secretary Hay has granted permission to the Civil Federation, of Chicago, through its secretary, to request all United States Consuls in Europe to respond to a series of questions as to the existence and workings of trusts and trade combinations in the countries in which they are stationed.

That President McKinley will be re-elected is as certain as anything in the future can be. Even if there had been no war with Spain, this would still be certain, on account of the prosperous condition of the country. The matter is thus briefly by a resident of Washington: "All elections in this country are carried by the laboring vote, the men who follow the plow and the mechanics and artisans are the ones who elect Presidents. This class of voters are not yet ready to again embark upon the sea of approximate free trade, which is the chief corner stone of the so-called Democratic organization.

The laboring man is too near the time when he walked the street, looking for work, living in soup-houses that were maintained by public charity, while his wife and children were at home without the necessary food to sustain life, and without fuel to keep them warm, to be ready yet to join the party which closed up the factories and threw them out of employment during the last Cleveland administration. If William McKinley had nothing to rely upon except the fact that he had given employment to every laboring man throughout the length and breadth of the land, he could rest assured of re-election."

Mr. R. J. Vincent, of California, who thinks Senator White of his state would be the strongest man the Democrats could nominate for President, said: "But there is no use expecting any such good luck. Bryan is already picked out, and if he hasn't any more show in the rest of the Union than in California, he will make a worse race than in '96."

The fourth treaty for reciprocity with British colonies was this week signed by representatives of the United States and Great Britain. They provide for trade reciprocity with Barbados, Bermuda, British Guiana and Jamaica. The text of none of these treaties will be made known until they have been acted upon by Congress, the Dingley law, under which they were negotiated, requiring that they shall be approved by the House as well as the Senate before becoming effective. The time within which reciprocity treaties under the Dingley law could be negotiated, expired this week, but that will not prevent a resumption and completion of negotiation for similar treaties with France and Germany, which were begun some time ago, but never completed. The Constitutional authority of the President enables him to negotiate commercial treaties at any time.

Hundreds of private letters from soldiers in the Philippines give the lie to the claim that the military censorship has resulted in misrepresentation of the situation over there. Here is an extract from a letter just received from an officer in the regulars: "The insurgent army is demoralized and very much scattered. It has been frightfully slaughtered and conservative estimates place their killed at from six to eight thousand. It looks as though the bottom might drop out of the rebellion at any moment, though these little devils are persistent and seem bent on keeping the ball rolling. They are undoubtedly hard pressed for grub and ammunition, and sooner or later must give in."

Beauty Is Blood Deep.
Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic, clean your blood and keep it clean, by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Change Suggested for Size, Weights and Designs of Our Coins.

The present weight and bullion value of our silver coins, as issued, offer a premium to and an encouragement of counterfeiting.
The designs, weight and value of the metal in our silver coins make them easy and profitable to copy and impossible of detection when the same weight and quantity of silver are used in the manufacture of large quantities of the smaller coins will be found to be the case when the Treasury Department calls them in.

The coins and coinage of a great nation like the United States should be representative of that nation in the matter of design, weight and value, and the metals used, especially in the one-cent, two-cent and five-cent pieces, should be of alloys that represent the progress of our country in metallurgy. Aluminum bronze would make clean one and two cent coins; an alloy of nickel and aluminum would make a cleaner and less weighty five-cent coin. But, of course, a study of the alloys would soon determine the best composition of metals for these coins of small value.

As regards our silver coins they should be entirely remodeled not only as weight and bullion value, but as regards design. Could we better mark the beginning of the twentieth century than by a complete change in the design of our coins?

Instead of more or less beautiful heads of Liberty or goddesses with pinheads seated, or the unimaginative eagle, why not use medallion heads of the great men who have made the republic possible, and symbols that represent our material progress? Surely the head of Franklin on our one-cent coin would be a continual reminder of the importance of saving your pennies. The head of Washington on our dollars would make it a real daddy dollar; the half and quarter dollar and the dime could carry medallions of our great financiers, and the nickel, used so freely for transportation purposes, should be decorated with the head of our greatest electrician.

Furthermore, the weight and diameter of the different coins could be made respectively units of weight and measure in the metric system of weights and measures that has so long been in process of introduction.
The design for a new coinage should not be left to the Treasury officials, no matter how clever they may be, but should be a matter for the consideration of the best art ability obtainable throughout our land, so that the coins when finished would be truly representative of the people and the country from which they emanate.—N. Y. Times.

As To Improvements.

When it comes to making improvements in all branches of railroad service the Baltimore and Ohio railroad does not have to retire from the front rank. As "Nothing is too good for the Irish," so nothing is too good for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad patrons, and a progressive step in dining car service is being taken. The Royal Blue-Line dining cars are being shipped as rapidly as possible to change the interiors so that each car will have a table de hôte compartment and a cafe, where the service will be a la carte. This part of the car will have easy chairs, tables and other conveniences of a first-class cafe, where gentlemen can smoke and eat without interfering with those who prefer a different state of things.

Build up the system; puts pure, rich blood in the veins; makes men and women strong and healthy. Blood-Hitters. At any drug store.

DISMISSED

Were the Charges Against Mayor Richardson.

The meeting of the City Council to investigate the charges preferred against Mayor Richardson by Frank B. Ranger, was called to order by President Wood. All members answered roll call except Eveleigh.

The charges were read by the Clerk, Attorney R. A. Underwood represented the prosecution and attorney A. D. Follett the defense.

The members of Council were sworn by Squire N. E. Kidd, and the trial commenced.

Mr. Follett moved that the first charge be dismissed on the ground that it did not charge "misfeasance, malfeasance, nonfeasance or misconduct in office nor neglect of official duty." He showed clearly that it was no part of the official duty of the Mayor to take part in the parade on July 4th, therefore the charge of misfeasance could not stand and the Council had no authority under statute or ordinance to investigate.

Mr. Underwood then admitted that Mr. Follett's stand was correct and withdrew the charge.

There was some discussion as to whether attorneys' motions could be considered by the Council without some member formally making the motion. It was finally decided that motions must be made by members of the Council.

Lambert moved that Mr. Follett's motion to dismiss first charge be sustained. Motion was carried.

Mr. Follett then took up the first part of the second charge, which stated that on the 3d and 4th days of July, 1899, the Mayor was intoxicated, etc., and was wholly unfit to perform the duties of his office. Follett claimed that this was only a repetition of the first charge. Further, that as the Mayor did not attempt to perform official duties he could not have been guilty of misconduct in office. Underwood differed, claiming that the fact that the Mayor was intoxicated constituted misconduct in office.

Lambert moved that Follett's motion be sustained. Carried.

Follett asked that the second part of charge two, relating to Mayor's fight, be dismissed on the grounds that disorderly conduct as a private citizen did not constitute misconduct in office. Underwood agreed and asked withdrawal without formal action of the Council.

Mr. Follett stated that the third charge was the only one that merited any consideration whatever. He stated that the Mayor was not required by law to be in his office at all times and the mere fact that he was absent from office on July 5, 1899, and that prisoners did not have hearing, did not make him guilty of nonfeasance in office.

Underwood held that under the constitution of the United States, prisoners were entitled to speedy and public trial; that it was the duty of the Mayor to give them such trial, and that he was therefore guilty of nonfeasance.

Follett replied by stating that the statutes or ordinances defining Mayor's duties did not state that the Mayor should have any fixed time for holding police court and that he was not compelled to give prisoners trial under three days from time of arrest, therefore the charges would not stand. He asked that Council dismiss the charge and upon motion it was done.

Here Underwood stated that he had not seen the charges until 6:30 Friday evening, and that he withdrew them all owing to faulty construction, technically.

Council adjourned without further action and the Mayor is pronounced not guilty of the charges.
